Harvest Festival 16 September

How lovely to see friends from Bury and other visitors at our Harvest Service. Thank you to Rev John Midgely for taking this special service for us and to everyone who helped in any way.

All good wishes to members and friends of the Chapel, especially those who are not well at the moment.

Minister's Month

The Charity committee were experiencing trouble the planned Murder Mystery Evening, they didn't have a script. 'Oh', I said, 'that isn't a problem I know someone who has written and produced and organised a number of these'. I expected to hand over a script and that would be that. Instead of which I ended up wearing a false moustache, trilby and raincoat and being told I looked like David Jason as the detective Jack Frost. I was not quite sure if I should take that as a compliment or not. Due to the absence or shyness of church members I was dragooned into thespian action. I have to say that sticky moustaches are very painful and when the temperature rises they go walk-about around one's face. I think everyone enjoyed the evening, though I think some people spent more time guessing who the dark-haired stranger in the dinner suit was rather than solving the murder. Roger Mills does 007.

Throughout the year members of the Samaritans have supported and helped at all the charity fund-raising events. I feel we have built up a real friendship with them and look forward to welcoming them to the Harvest Service to receive the money raised over the year. Not least was their participation in the Murder Mystery Evening'. they were very enthusiastic participants in the play and the young Samaritans made sure that the wine flowed during the evening. I hope our next charity will be equally involved in our fund-raising efforts next year;

Sad to say the tree planting to mark the Queen's diamond jubilee was a bit underwhelming. A lot of people were away on holiday and the weather was not favourable, even so the very low numbers attending were disappointing. Six adults and three children braved the weather and planted, a cherry, a crab apple and a maple tree in the graveyard at Holebottom. There were a few words and a prayer to dedicate the trees and then as a heavy shower swept in, our bedraggled band retreated to our cars.

On my week off this month I went, with a friend, to Dublin, a city I have driven through but never stayed in. We flew out on Monday morning and had decided on an early flight so that we could have a full day in Dublin. I didn't realise when this was booked that it would entail getting up at 4am to catch an 8 o'clock flight. We had found a lovely 'arts and crafts' cottage in the middle of the city which was situated in a very quiet little square. I am going to name drop now – the cottage next door was owned by Sinead Cusack and Jeremy Irons – Oooh! (actually we never saw them while we were there). The city itself is full of beautiful and imposing buildings and we visited almost all of them, or so my feet told me. We had lunch in the converted church where Handel and used the organ to rehearse Messiah before the first performance at the theatre in Fishamble Lane.

On the Sunday morning, before we flew home, we went to service at the Unitarian church on St Stephens Green. There was a congregation of about eighty people and the service was taken by Reverend Bridget Spain who, like myself, undertook the ministry two years ago while the congregation looked for a permanent minister. It was a good service, Bridget has a really lovely relaxed way of conducting worship, and the content was excellent, very Unitarian. A perfect end to a splendid week.

Beryl

My week off this month is 20th to 27th October when I am going to Northumberland.

Concert with Tony Berry

Saturday 6th October 7.30pm.

Tony Berry will entertain with stories-jokes and songs
It is sure to be a good evening as those who have seen Tony before will know.

Tickets from members of the Efforts Committee £8.00 ins refreshments.

Tickets for the Christmas Concert

Tickets will be on sale from 14th October

Tickets have already been ordered for this evening because it was enjoyed so much last year. It was a full house last year and we are Mulled wine and Mince Pies will be served at the interval.

Lawrence Killan will be here with the brass quintet, Minster Brass. Notobility Choir will be with us again.

Cody and Catherine Coyne are returning.

Finishing the evening with some carols for everyone.

Saturday 1st December at 7.30pm – get Christmas off to a great start.

Autumn Seminars

A series of seminars will begin at the end of October. The title is 'Journeying Home and Away' and they will explore what home as a place both outside and within ourselves and look at the spiritual meaning of home. There is a list on the notice board with a sample of the content of the seminars. They will run for six weeks on Tuesday evening from 7pm for two hours. The dates are October 30th November 6th, 13th, 20th, 27th December 4th.

It is important if you wish to take part that you attend all the sessions as it is not possible to dip in and out of these seminars. If you want to know any more see Beryl.
